BUCYRUS COUNCIL SEEKS INCREASE IN WATER RATE

Claims Money Needed To Meet Pipe Line Repairs Now Becoming Urgent.

Special to The Star
BUCYRUS, April 8 — An increased water rate for Bucyrus to meet pipe line repairs which are becoming urgent, was presented for consideration by Bucyrus city council Tuesday night by Councilman Walter Michael chairman of the utilities committee.

Councilman Michael in presenting his proposal submitted figures showing that the city has delinquent water rentals totaling $20,000 and that approximately $100,000 will be required within a short period for repairing pipe lines. The proposed increase of the minimum of one dollar a month rate to $1.25 or $1.50 a month would provide additional revenue of approximately $20,000 a year which might be available for repairs to mains and water plant. Revenue now is approximately $70,000 annually Michael pointed out.

The proposed salary reinstatement for eight city employees which hit a snag two weeks ago when council voted to reconsider the raises continued unsettled Tuesday night when council failed to register a vote sufficient to suspend the rules.

Protests by five Bucyrus bakery proprietors were received in a communication asking that council take action against out of town bakery concerns operating bakery delivery trucks on the streets of the city. Council authorized the city solicitor to reply to the communication explaining the status of peddling laws now in effect in the city.

Bucyrus traffic commission a x ordered by council to proceed at once to install traffic lights at three intersections including Main and Walnut, Charles and Walnut and West Warren and Poplar streets.

That the city continue to attempt immediate collection of delinquent real estate taxes was the consensus of council. Approximately $153,000 is delinquent in real estate taxes.

Delinquencies in the water works department were doubled during the period April 1934 to Dec. 31, 1935. It was disclosed in the report filed by State Examiner George F. Zinsman who recently completed an examination of the city records of Bucyrus.

Boy, 12, Sacks Potatoes To Earn $1 for Stadium

Team Mascot Asks Other Sports To "Give Us a Lift."

Twelve-year-old Howard Stephens, 112 Avondale avenue today, started $1 he had earned by sacking potatoes to the project to erect a stadium at Lincoln park and challenge other real sports to do as well.

Howard revealed his interest in the project in a brief note sent to the city commission and to the city council. In the note Stephens, son of a farmer, stated how he had acquired the $1 by sacking 14 pecks of potatoes for the grocery store. He also stated that he was cleaning a garden, cutting wood and running errands.

He completed the note with a challenge to other interested in the project which would give them a new $10,000 WPA stadium by writing "Come on you sports give us a lift. On your part a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stephens is in the fourth grade of the Silver Street school. He is an active member of the Silver Gray club and very much interested in all sports, especially football. He has been the mascot of the Lee Street Sunday school team ever since the club was organized more than eight years ago and incidentally the only full fledged mascot and boy out of form in the school on the roster of a city football team. Howard Stephens is working his way with them through many campaigns.

Virginia Reel and Minuet To Fill Democrats' Purse

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 8.—Dancing and dancing in the name of Jefferson has been adopted by the Democrats as a source of revenue.

Just finished with a nation wide series of dances in the name of Jefferson, the Democrats have been working out for a while the Democrats of the nation to dancing to the memory of Thomas Jefferson April 11.

The Jefferson day festivities will center upon a master dance at the fifth Regiment armory in Baltimore where President Roosevelt will attend. Just as in the case of the Jackson day dances the President will deliver a speech broadcast to the Jefferson day dances elsewhere.

But various side lines have been worked into the Jefferson day festivities. The women will be clad in colonial costumes—an idea worked out by Mrs. Roosevelt. For the costumes patterns have been made and sold at a profit.

Minicograph institutions, on how to dance the Virginia reel and the minuet have been sent out. The old fashioned dance programs which will be distributed to the women arriving at the dances contain pen and ink sketches of Thomas Jefferson, President Roosevelt.

Albuminuria.
MANY PEOPLE do not understand what is meant by albumin in the urine, or albuminuria, as the doctor call it. There is a popular idea that to have even a small amount of albumin in a very serious matter.

Fortunately medical science has advanced so that more is known about this symptom. In puzzling cases elaborate tests are made to determine whether the kidneys are at fault. Of course the presence of considerable amounts of albumin must never be disregarded. Fitting quantities of albumin are almost always found. Usually there is no more than a slight trace.

Since the kidneys are delicate organs and like other structures easily irritated the albumin content is easily and quickly increased. For this reason albuminuria is almost invariably associated with irritation and inflammation of the kidneys.

These may be signs of serious kidney damage. Certainly they should serve as warnings never to be ignored. But most persons who have albumin in the urine are free of kidney damage and need not fear that they are victims of serious kidney trouble. They may surely be reassured if there are no other abnormal findings in the urine.

If the diet contains an excessive amount of protein substances the kidneys may secrete considerable albumin. Persons who indulge in an improperly high protein diet including excessive quantities of meats, fish and eggs will usually show albumin.

Albuminuria is commonly found among athletes and others engaged in strenuous work. It is a not infrequent symptom of persons who are obliged to indulge in prolonged standing or sitting. It is then spoken of as an occupational symptom and is medically known as "orthostatic albuminuria." The albumin disappears with rest and change of work.

Some persons are more likely to present these symptoms than others. They may appear to be in perfect health, entirely free from pain or discomfort. Yet examination of the urine shows it to be loaded with albumin. Many of these cases are believed to be due to some hereditary factor.

ROTARY HEARS THEATER HEAD

"Block Booking" Best Assurance of Good Pictures, Palace Manager Says.

Members of the Marion Rotary club were given an interesting insight into the business and problems of the motion picture industry in a talk yesterday by George Planck, manager of the Palace theater.

Mr. Planck, addressing the club in its weekly luncheon meeting at Hotel Harding directed his remarks primarily to an explanation and defense of block booking, the system of motion picture contracting in general effect among theaters throughout the country.

This system, which would be prohibited by proposed legislation now under consideration in Washington enables theater managers to book their entire year's schedule of feature pictures in advance.

The primary aim of those who oppose block booking is to eliminate objectionable pictures which they assert is difficult under contract made a year ahead. Mr. Planck declared this viewpoint to be incorrect since under the block system theaters may, if they see fit, cancel up to 10 per cent of the bookings. This he said is ample protection against pictures which might be of a sensitive nature.

Protects Smaller Communities

Block booking, Mr. Planck declared, provides the best possible protection for theaters in the smaller cities since it places them on the same footing with the metropolitan centers in getting early "bookings" of the best attractions.

He pointed out that should bookings be limited to short periods, theaters in the smaller cities would be unable to bid effectively against their larger competitors.

Mr. Planck likened the movement against block booking to that which resulted in censorship. Although voicing approval of censorship he declared it to be an expensive failure, adding a heavy burden of expense on the motion picture industry. "And remember," he said, "that this extra cost necessarily is reflected in what the public pays at the box office."

Where Censorship Failed

Asking "what is wrong with cure-all censorship?" the Palace manager mentioned that at the time Max Baer's first pictures brought her into the spotlight theaters were crowded to capacity to see her offerings while high standard films of unquestioned educational and moral quality were shown to only small groups of spectators.

In the final analysis, according to Mr. Planck's explanation the public's tastes and demands are the controlling factor. Evidence of the public viewpoint was cited in the fact that schools, churches and other organizations selecting pictures for benefit showings have been known to reject "Q" level pictures and similar quality educational features because they do not draw at the box office.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 8, 1936

Leading the Field.

In the presidential campaign of 1932 President Hoover definitely was not a good radio orator. He did not lose the election for that reason, but it was a handicap.

Mr. Hoover's improved style of speaking has been the subject of much comment since he emerged from retirement to engage in the 1936 campaign. He is not the same man who suffered by comparison with his more polished opponent four years ago. It has become a question whether Mr. Hoover can continue to hold the No. 1 radio position. Mr. Hoover is a strong contender.

The new radio Hoover is full of wit and punch. He reached a climax last Saturday night in a speech which was quoted widely Monday morning when friends and acquaintances started a new week. There no longer can be any question about Mr. Hoover's importance as a speaker in the 1936 campaign. In a field of good Republican speakers, he is running far ahead. His logic is forceful and direct. His wit is keen, and it is effective. Mr. Hoover has done more to get under new deal skins than any other critic. Furthermore, he has assured himself of an audience by establishing a reputation as an entertaining speaker. He is setting a pace for all other political orators. If they ever begin to keep that pace much of the apprehension about the 1936 campaign will be forgotten. The campaign will be entertaining, at least.

After all, politics is intrinsically a lively subject. Mr. Hoover, once believed to have destroyed forever his popular appeal by the 1932 campaign, is regaining popularity at a rate which gives both Republicans and Democrats something to think about. No other man is doing a better job of presenting the case against the new deal than the man once believed to have been sent into political oblivion by the triumph of Franklin D. Roosevelt in November, 1932.

No Harm in Asking.

The supreme court's ruling affecting the power of the securities and exchange commission seems to reaffirm the common belief that there's no harm in asking. A Mr. J. Edward Jones had applied to the commission for approval of a security issue. When the commission sought to question Mr. Jones, he withdrew his application. Thereupon, the commission sought to compel him to appear before it anyway. The supreme court ruled that the commission did not have the right it sought to exercise.

But even in a ruling without bearing on any question of constitutionality, the new deal cannot escape a supreme court reminder of its obligations under the Constitution. The court's opinion, three justices dissenting, reads: "The action of the commission finds no support in right, principle or in law. It violates the cardinal precept upon which the constitutional safeguards of personal liberty ultimately rest—that this shall be a government of laws—because to the precise extent that the mere will of an official or an official body is permitted to take the place of allowable official discretion or to supplant the standing law as a rule of human conduct, the government ceases to be one of laws and becomes one of autocracy."

Believe It or Not.

Believe it or not—but Robert Ripley is the hero of heroes to thousands of cast side boys in New York city. Voting in a "hero worship poll," the boys picked the cartoonist's job as the one they would take if they had their choice of all the jobs in the world. They'd like to go places and meet interesting people and freaks, just as Ripley does.

Ranging in age from 8 to 18, these city lads had no illusions about street car conductors and cowboys, but they just couldn't resist the fascination of a policeman's life. J. Edgar Hoover, chief G-man, was their second choice. Not surprisingly, James Cagney came next by appealing to the Irish in them, while the loquacious Dizzy Dean fireballed and talked his way into fourth place.

Yes, they got around to President Roosevelt and the King of England, but placed them in seventh and eighth position, respectively. The boys weren't so all-fired sure presidential and kingly jobs were set-up; too many people picking on you, they sagely remarked. What's more, Mr. Roosevelt and Mayor LaGuardia, who followed King Edward, are not certain how long they can hold their jobs and a fellow

York and Jack Dempsey added thrills and punch to a list which would have been small if it hadn't stopped with a newspaper man. Walter Winchell wisely cracked himself into tenth place. The boys weren't fooled by Mussolini, Vice President Garner or Mayor Bowles but they just couldn't resist preading a newspaper man into the rolls. Otherwise, a fine list, boys.

Without Remedy.

Tornadoes which have reduced whole areas in Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama to rubble are different from the recent floods and dust storms which have disturbed the country in the fact that they are without remedy. As far as man can discover, the tornado is wholly beyond their control. They cannot be blamed for its occurrence, nor can they be held responsible for its too frequent repetition.

Floods, on the other hand, they can trace in large part to their own neglect. Likewise, they can attempt to do something to remove the cause of dust storms. At least they are not forced to admit they are powerless to fight back to preserve their security. But against the tornado they can bring no force to bear which would be even theoretically effective.

Experiments with weather control have been tried in a small way. Men hope to be able some day to produce rain at will, perhaps even to prevent rain when they are getting too much of it. But wind deflection even theoretical control. When the water has been trapped in reservoirs and the ground anchored, the wind still will blow with no appropriation to hold it in check.

Tornadoes always will be reminders that nature holds the upper hand and may use its power destructively whenever it chooses to do so.

When Experts Disagree.

When experts disagree, ordinary men are to be pitied. Their own opinions, based necessarily on information gained from trained minds, become varied and confused.

Banking leaders and professors, discussing possibilities of a credit boom in the semi-annual meeting of the Academy of Political Science last week, showed plainly that they cannot agree on many vital points. Out of their disagreement, however, seems to come a kind of agreement which, though it adds to popular apprehension, is valuable as a guiding fact.

All of them agree a credit boom is in prospect. A credit boom is, of course, merely one way of describing inflation. Inflation, furthermore, is another way of saying a boom, and a great many Americans earnestly desire a boom. Thus, men who warn against the danger of the country's present situation find themselves in an unpopular position.

Some of them believe it would be better in the long run to avert booms, believing that booms cause collapses and depression. Some of them think the federal government has the power to make booms impossible. Others say government has power, but will not have sufficient courage to use it. Still others deny that anything can be done—"We will proceed merrily to the next smash."

It would seem, therefore, that most experts agree on the probability of a boom and the inevitability of a collapse if the boom is not brought under control by the federal government through its power over money, credit and banking operations. There is nothing new or different about the prospect, except the existence of a possible method of control. Otherwise, the prospect of a boom, aside from the federal government's huge debt, doesn't differ materially from the prospect after the low point of preceding periods of depression. The United States still isn't sure it has learned anything from the boom of the 1920's and the collapse of the 1930's.

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Thursday, April 8, 1926. Mrs. E. G. Allen, 88, last surviving granddaughter of Eber Baker, founder of Marion, died at her home on East Center street.

Premier Mussolini, undeterred by a wound inflicted in an attempt to assassinate him the preceding day, left on a trip to Tripoli. His nose, which has been injured in the assassin's attack, was covered with a surgeon's plaster.

W. E. O'Connell, principal of Central Junior High school, announced that the school with 425 pupils enrolled went over the top 100 per cent on its first school banking day. It was declared to be a national record.

Kiwanians held an inter-city meeting at Hotel Harding with 125 in attendance from Kenton, Gallon, Elyria and Marion. A. W. Kette, president of the Marion club, was toastmaster, and Capt. R. A. Greer of McCook field in Dayton was the principal speaker. Ira Marshall, Hardin county farmer who had won the title of the world's champion corn grower, was with the Kenton delegation and told how he had grown 160 bushels of corn to the acre.

Tax Measure Brings New Deal Dilemma

Roosevelt's White Rabbit Pulled from Proverbial Political Hat May Turn Out To Be White Elephant.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Copyright, 1936, by The Marion Star
WASHINGTON, April 8.—President Roosevelt is credited by his admirers with pulling a "white rabbit" out of the proverbial political hat of presidential year magic when he proposed the tax on undistributed earnings of corporations, but it may turn out to be another kind of an animal, figuratively known as a "white elephant."

For Representative Pettengill of Indiana, Democrat, has discovered that the way the tax is set up at present by the house subcommittee the treasury may lose about $800,000,000 it had expected to have for the fiscal year 1937 and thus throw the federal budget even more out of balance than anybody had dreamed.

The dilemma is simple to explain but difficult to solve. It happens this way: The present corporation tax, which is a flat tax on earnings, would normally be paid on March 15, 1937, by those corporations which made their returns on the calendar year beginning Jan. 1, 1936, and ending Dec. 31, 1936. The treasury experts estimate that this would be about $800,000,000. But—and here's the rub—as a part of the President's plan, the corporation tax was to be repealed and no corporations would be paying in any more on this flat tax next March. Thus $800,000,000 was to be wiped out.

The corporations, on the other hand, were expected to be paying a sizeable tax for the privilege of retaining some of their surpluses and the individual stockholders were supposed to pay a higher individual income tax because of the receipt of dividends.

All this would conform to the President's hopes except for one thing, namely that the individual income tax returns will not be made out until exactly 12 months after March 15, 1937, or in March, 1938, and hence the treasury wouldn't begin to get in this money until nearly nine months after the fiscal year 1937—which ends June 30, 1937—will have closed.

On the other hand, then, about $800,000,000 of receipts from the corporation tax are lost to the treasury estimate for the fiscal year 1937 and, on the other hand, it is difficult to see how any considerable sum will have been obtained in the place that can get into the treasury sooner than March, 1938.

The reason for this is unavoidable. In the first place, corporations are to be given two and one-half months after next Jan. 1 in which to figure out how much of their surpluses they want to retain and how much they want to pay out in dividends. This is because no company can possibly tell where it is at from an audit standpoint until after Dec. 31, 1936. During the subsequent two and a half months it is up to the directors as to how much of the 1936 earnings will be withheld and how much will be paid to stockholders. During the two and a half months, however, that payments are decided upon, the corporation may choose to pay out its dividends in a lump or quarterly, but in either event the taxpayer does not count it as income for the year 1936 but income for the year in which he receives it, namely, 1937. The individual returns for 1937 income, of course, are not payable until March 15, 1938.

Now some corporations will be paying out dividends during the year 1936 on a quarterly basis as rapidly as the dividends are earned, but in view of the new tax law and the fact that the proposed statute will give each company two and a half months after the calendar year in which to make its final payments, the chances are that dividend payments will be arranged on a regular and "extra" basis, but most of the "extra" will come in 1937. So far as the treasury is concerned, it will not benefit by any increase beyond these regular dividends of 1936 except the usual increase due to improved business conditions. But the whole purpose of the undistributed earnings tax was to force extra dividends into circulation. It is this which has been given as the primary reason for the application of new deal tax theory. Actually, however, no such distribution can help the treasury out if the tax on the major part is not going to be collected until nine months after the fiscal year in which it is needed.

Should no way be found to bring in this revenue in the fiscal year 1937, the budget for that year—the fourth in the Roosevelt regime—will probably be more out of balance than the three preceding years, in which case Mr. Roosevelt will wind up with a tax law that deprives him of the hope he expressed in his message to congress, namely that the fourth year of his administration would show a decrease over preceding years.

The seriousness of this gap in collections is fully realized now by members of congress since Representative Pettengill brought it to their attention, nobody, however, has come forward with a solution. It might be thought that one way would be to continue the corporation tax for another year and allow corporations in March, 1937, a credit on the next year's taxes, but the trouble with that is that some companies will want to pay out all their surpluses and thus avoid any tax and under the President's plan they are permitted to escape the corporation tax if they pay all their earnings out in dividends. Also the corporation tax, if paid in advance to the government, would complicate a company's bookkeeping, since a corporation that wanted to figure out its real net income could not pay the federal government money that really belonged to the stockholders under the new law.

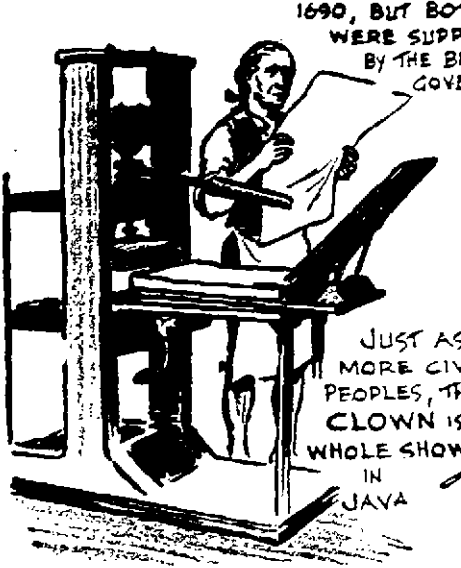

The undistributed earnings tax is running into so many snags that the senate is likely to keep the present corporation tax and put on in addition a slight tax on undistributed earnings. But this will not meet the need. The answer is that even the proposed tax on undistributed surpluses never would have done so anyway. In other words, the whole tax plan is a camouflage of the truth, which is that the politicians know they do not dare "look the word" until after the November, 1936, election is over. And yet there is no other productive source now to balance the budget except, of course, drastic economy, which the new dealers also fear would spoil their pet projects and their political future with those voters who will be resentful over lost favors and subsidies.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's remarkable case of grip improved progressively as the house tax hearings neared an end. The time-liness of the attack, which dispatched him to sunny Georgia just before the hearings started, likewise restored him to health and Washington the day they were scheduled to close.

The absence of the general during the formative stage of the battle has caused considerable comment among camp followers. They are making the natural mistake of suspecting that it is a personal matter, whereas it involves the whole strategy of the administration fight. Therein lies the explanation of what has happened so far and the promise of what is to come.

More than one general has considered it wise to find out where the army is going before attempting to lead it there. This technique is especially advisable with armies as unruly as congress in a tax fight during a campaign year.

What happened was this: General Roosevelt and Morgenthau submitted the vague outline of a corporation tax reform with astounding possibilities for enriching the rich and sharing the wealth. They then sent a couple of cavalry troopers, Colonel Oliphant and Helvering and Capt. McLeod up to argue it out with the army while they went fishing, or curing the grip, as the case may be.

In the interim the details of the tax issue have been fought out. The vagaries of the original scheme have been snipped off. It is possible to see just what can be done.

A vigorous leadership for that can now be undertaken.

Results
A general understanding has been reached among the insiders that the final form of the bill will not carry any broad risk-taking or wealth-sharing implications.

The corporation tax, they say, will strike only the few corporations which have more surpluses now than they will ever be able to use and the personal corporations which have been used for tax evasion.

Sufficient exemptions will be provided to enable corporations generally, big and little, to retire their debts and accumulate reasonable surpluses without an increase in existing taxation.

If that is not sufficiently guaranteed in the bill now being composed by the house committee, it will be provided in the senate. At least this is the promise now being made so generally on the inside that it has become a general expectation. Some skeptics will want to wait until they see it.

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks.

NEW YORK, April 8.—There is a fascination about those names that make us wonder if they are patents of nobility—or just names. Such, for instance, as King Vidor, Duke Ellington, Baron Wilkes, Prinz Biederstein and Marquis Gaido. To say nothing of the double header, Don Marquis, or Rex Stout.

Perhaps best of all is Harold Lord Varney, a magazine editor. There is an almost uncontrollable impulse to place a comma after his first name. There was an office boy on Hampton's named King Royal. But it liked. He thought it too regal and when 21 had it changed to James Smith.

But the fascination of names is not confined solely to those getting the pomp of thrones. Among those expressing unusual dignity to me are Keats Speed, Victor Herbert, Cornelius Vanderbilt, Richard Harding Davis and Meredith Nicholson. And one might suspect Edna St. Vincent Milley named herself.

The most amusing of the celebrity names, I think, is that of the crutche editor of the Nation—Joseph Wood Krutch. Either he lacks humor or has an abundant supply to sign his articles. Men with talent, however, can give gusto to ridiculous names. Percy Crosby and Percy Hammond, for example.

Old guardmen who know say that if Senator Borah had not gone into New York State in quest of delegates, he would have obtained at least half a dozen. Now he will not get any. The reason is that his quest became a campaign against the organization and the organization failed.

The Black committee has plenty of personal enemies in the house because it has put a number of house members needlessly on the spot. The rule giving the Black committee $10,000 for special counsel got out of the house rules committee refused to vote. Even then approval was only by a 3 to 4 margin. Dinner Stories

Bob was unable, through illness, to go to work on pay-day, so asked his workmate, Mick, to get his wages and bring them along to his house. Late that night Mick arrived at Bob's house, looking rather serious.

"I've lost yer wages, Bob!" he said.

"Lost my wages?" began Bob.

"Yes," he blurted, "I believe if I had gone on playing I should have lost my own." (Answers.)

Oplician—"How many lines can you read on that chart?" Patient—"What chart?" (Car-negie Tech Puppet.)

There was a character who used to haunt the bars called Pop Corn Bill. Irving Cobb glorified him in a Saturday Evening Post folio. Bill's capacity for popcorn inspired many bets. He could polish off one of those huge bowls—there was one in every bar—filled to overflowing, without turning a hair. And his capacity for liquor was just as outstanding. But he died one day after a performance in the Martingale bar. And Frank O'Malley, as you might imagine, did a grand "obit" for him in the Sun.

They were talking about the advent of the gas stove. Baird Leonard's parents installed one and then went on a six months' tour of Europe, leaving the house in charge of Mandy, the cook. Upon their return, Mandy was asked about the stove. "I declare," she exclaimed, "that's the bestest thing I ever

TODAY—Tornadoes May Be Followed: They Never Turn.

A sudden tornado outbreak has struck six states, eleven cities and towns; 437 dead, already known; millions in property destroyed. These tornadoes strike at random, with inconceivable fury. At Gainesville, Fla., where a group of men stands to the first doctor to operate under anesthesia, the lower end of a tapering, whirling cyclone leveled one building, scattering fragments, not injuring buildings on either side. This writer, in Kansas City, when young, accompanied by a charming St. Louis girl named Cora Baker, in days when Col. Carter was still alive, followed from the Coates House in a two-horse hack behind a cyclone that had come down the Missouri river and climbed up over the Kansas City bluff. That cyclone cut houses in two as a knife cuts butter, tearing away one half of a room, disturbing furniture in the other half. You may follow a cyclone safely; it never turns around.

From Cordell, Ga., Mr. Anderson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, telegraphs, describing appalling loss of life and property, urging contributions to the Red Cross. The situation presents a job too big for anything but the government, probably.

Dancer Is Dead

Marilyn Miller is dead, only 25 years old. The little town of Hixley, O., or the bigger town of New York, might well erect some monument to her memory. She contributed a great deal to human cheerfulness and happiness, and may be said of her, as Samuel Johnson said, referring to the death of the great actor, Garrick, that her death "eclipsed the glory of nations and impoverished the public's stock of harmless pleasure."

Books for Sailors

The American Merchant Marine Library Association supplies books for sailors on American merchant ships and needs fifty thousand volumes to enrich its circulating library and replace worn-out volumes.

What books would you send to sailors out of sight of land? First, perhaps, simply written books of astronomy, describing things that they see overhead, telling how big they are. Then a brief history of great sea fights, from Themistocles defeating the Persians, in his "tale of wood," to Nelson at Trafalgar and John Paul Jones.

You would send a book on the blessings of solitude, if you could find a good one; several books of humor—the lonely sailor must need them—and exciting detective stories to offset dull shipboard routine. What other books?

Another Big Question

A lady who signs "B A G" is interested in very serious things. She writes, "The more I hear of those big armies, the more I am reminded of the huge population of hell. What is your idea of hell?"

"That big question may be answered later. An aged colored man once told his pastor: 'I don't believe in hell because I don't think any constitution could stand it.' 'It worries me,' says the lady, 'that so many men are afraid of poverty here upon earth, and yet afraid of hell.' Miss B. A. G. is certain that hell is real, a hell that must be comforting to those anxious to have the wicked punished."

Wrong Man Twain

The Mark Twain memorial committee has designed a "Mark Twain memorial" almost perfect, except for the presentation of Mark Twain himself. He looks like a good natured barber saying "Next!" is out of place with the Mark Twain characters surrounding him—Joan of Arc, Huckleberry Finn and the rest. The sculptor might show Mark Twain as he was when young, aboard the Mississippi steamer with all those characters unborn in his brain, or better when he was old, thin, white-haired, his soul shining through his jowls eyes.

LEESBURG

There are two Leesburgs in Ohio—one in Carroll county and the other in Highland county—so there are not two postoffices that name. The name of the post office at the Carroll county Leesburg is Leesville. In that confusion in mail delivery avoided. The postoffice department does not care how many towns a state has bearing the same name; but it is very particular about duplicated postoffice names. Why the people of Carroll county Leesburg hung so closely to the name of Lee is apparent.

Leesburg has long been known as a center of social reform and intellectual development. It is an underground railroad station in slavery days.

Spook Poor? He Asks
Claiming Responsibility Is Evaded.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., April 3.—The state division of securities, which began a vigorous campaign to regulate liquor warehouse receipt sales several months ago, has halted its activity and soon may abandon it.

Alfred A. Benesch, state director of commerce, declared today he felt the division overstepped its authority. The division is a part of his department.

Benesch personally sided with the Faulkner Co. of Springfield, which asked a common pleas court to enjoin the commerce director from interfering with sale of liquor receipts.

The company questioned constitutionality of a section of the state securities act which, the attorney general has held, defines warehouse receipts as securities.

"If people want to buy liquor warehouse receipts," Benesch said, "we can't guarantee that they are buying the right kind of liquor any more than we could guarantee that they were buying the right kind of automobile."

"The state can't be the guardian of its citizens in every particular," he said.

Acting on the attorney general's opinion, the securities division ordered about 35 dealers in the receipts two months ago to register with it. Only four have complied. Action to compel the others to comply has been held in abeyance pending the court's decision on the Faulkner company's action.

KENTON SEES BOOM AS DAM WORK GROWS

Special to The Star
KENTON, April 3.—With several large contracts for sluice gates, hoisting equipment and other material for a series of dams and water conserving projects under way at the Champion Equipment Co. here, officials predicted a boom period here in the next score of years as the nation strives to escape the threat of floods.

The prospect of a gigantic program of flood control and water conservation by the building of hundreds of large and small dams throughout the United States bodes well for the local concern which is completing work on material for the Muskingum valley conservation district, for the city of Spokane, Wash., and the city of Rochester, N. Y.

A steel, collapsible dam, one of the first of its kind ever built in this country, is to be shipped soon to Rochester. Francis Davies and E. B. Phillips are executives of the concern, which manufactures and assembles special contract jobs on the basis of the job instead of on the tonnage involved.

EXPOSITION DRAWS BIG OPENING CROWD

fered a difficult routine of exhibition shuffling.

Murdoch, working in the featured spot, presented in addition to a group of standard magic tricks, several new illusions that completely mystified. His work was well received by the audience. Tom and Jerry, a clown knock-about act, closed the bill. The acts will be featured during the remaining three days of the show.

Large FMA Display
One of the most elaborate and attractive displays to be seen at the exposition has been entered by the Federal Housing Administration. The exhibit is in charge of P. B. Daley, FMA field representative for the Ohio district that includes Marion, and R. J. Weber, and M. J. Meyer of the housing administration offices in Columbus. Mr. Daley spoke briefly over the amplifying system, explaining the housing administration's loan plan and urging show visitors to stop at the exhibit for full information on how residents may build or buy under the government's single insured mortgage plan. Mr. Daley described the administration's offer as the most liberal mortgage terms in history.

The works progress administration is exhibiting a WPA sanitary outhouse unit and representatives are on hand to explain the offer to build them at slight cost for materials, with no charge for labor. The display is in charge of E. B. Wiley of Marion.

The Boy Scout and Girl Scout exhibits show the handiwork of their members, together with badges and awards given by the organizations.

Following is a list of business and industrial concerns represented at the exposition with displays of the latest commodities essential in making a complete home and maintaining it:

Marion Lumber Co., Millard Hunt Co., Majestic Furnace Co., Marion Supply Co., Avenue Lumber Co., Van Atta Supply Co., Probet Brothers, Bechtel & Son, Carey Roofing Co. of Cincinnati, Marion Paint Co., Huber Manufacturing Co., Slanger Lumber Co., The Marion Star, C. D. & M. Electric Co., Forest Glen, Inc., Lennon Furniture Co., J. G. Kline Co., H. Schaffner Co., Ohio Fuel Gas Co., Isaly Dairy Co., Hughes Photo Service, Marion County Farm Bureau, Old Fort Mills, Inc., Marion Candy & Cigar Co., Marion Coca-Cola Bottling Co., Pure Oil Co., Union Bakery, Marion Milling Co., Bindley Grocery Co., Moores & Ross Milk Co., Monarch Printing Co., Carroll & Co., Ltd., Wiant's Book Store, Frank Brown, Co., Baber Baking Co., Marion Electric & Furniture Co., Smith Mattress Co., City Ice & Fuel Co., Vernon Heights Realty Co., and the Throop-Martin Co. of Columbus.

Home Building Exhibits
Prominent among the exhibits on the first floor are those displayed by the lumber companies, showing the latest trends in building and in modernizing the home. Features include extensive displays of new-type window frames and rock wool insulating. The window frames have no weights or cords but use instead zinc strips. They are fully weather stripped. The rock wool insulation may be installed in any home and is said by dealers to make rooms up to 15 degrees cooler in summer and easier to heat in cold weather.

Also featured in the lumber company exhibits is the "tip-top" overhead garage door. Small models illustrate its convenience. Included in the lumber displays are processed tile, quarterboard, enamels and paints, shingles and siding, furnaces, hardware, interchangeable door knobs in pastel colors and virtually every type building product.

A hardware supply company is showing radon in every size, electric sweepers, lighting and plumbing fixtures, batteries and all electrical supplies.

The show visitor will find extensive displays of furnaces and automatic stokers on the first floor of the exposition building. Also featured are air condition-devoted its entire exhibit to a display of standard and portable typewriters, including the showing of a standard model with a 24-inch carriage, the largest ever exhibited in Marion. This firm also has one of the novelty features of the exposition, a crude model typewriter constructed from what is supposed to be a replica of Robinson Crusoe wreckage. This is the first showing of this novel exhibit in a city under the size of Cleveland, the sponsor said.

Office supply displays include typewriters, adding machines, cut-out letter signs, name cards and the newest paper novelties for bridge and dinner parties.

The visitor at the show may visit a booth on the second floor and learn something about how newspapers are printed.

Complete Home Equipment
Furniture stores and firms dealing in home furnishings and accessories are featuring the latest lines of automatic refrigeration, ranges, washing machines, electric ironers, electric water heaters, cabinet-sink units, food mixers, plumbing accessories, sweepers, inlaid linoleum, radios, carpeting, draperies and curtains, lamps and furniture for every room.

One company has a display of burial park photographs and bronze grave markers. Another concern features a complete display of mattresses and studio lounges. One booth is given over to fishing tackle, casting rods and reels and virtually every accessory dear to the heart of the fisherman.

A local photograph service has arranged an attractive display of photographs and amateur photography materials. Bakeries are represented with full lines of fancy baked goods and various breads.

A Marion concern manufacturing farm equipment is featuring a tractor and other implements. One local dealer has installed a complete jewelry store, featuring a three-piece diamond set valued at $21,000. The set includes a marquise diamond ring and brooch and bracelet of marquise diamonds. In addition the store shows lines of silver and glassware, fountain pens, clocks and lamps.

Milling companies are in the show with attractive displays of their products and "give-away" novelties. An oil company has an extensive display of motor oil, gasoline, service accessories and a complete gasoline pump.

Dairy Exhibits Attractive
Two dairy firms are entered, one featuring two novel electrical displays that attracted wide attention at last night's formal opening. Cottage cheese put up in table glass containers and milk displays also are featured.

A candy and cigar firm has a full line of confections and tobacco, attractively arranged, while a bottled goods dealer is represented with an electrical sign display and the product they handle.

SEN. YODER TALKS AT MARION MEETING

State Office Candidate on Democratic Club Program; Campaign Plans Made.

Personal experiences as a member of the state legislature were related last night by State Senator Paul Yoder of Dayton in a talk before the Marion county Democratic club in party headquarters in the Marion National bank building.

Yoder, Democratic floor leader of the senate, is a candidate for lieutenant governor, the presiding officer of the senate, at the May primaries. He related in an informal manner his early political experience and discussed the organization plans of Montgomery county Democrats, his home county.

After a discussion of the political situation in the counties and the state, Mr. Yoder dealt briefly with the Roosevelt administration. He pointed to its accomplishments and predicted reelection of the President.

In part of his talk Mr. Yoder discussed several phases of the Ohio legislative program in recent years. He lauded the state old age pension system and said that although it is not yet perfect, difficulties are being worked out as rapidly as possible. He pointed to improvement in operation of the state industrial commission, saying a law adopted by the legislature now requires the commission to act on claims within six months after their filing.

Mr. Yoder was introduced by R. M. Wilhelm, H. R. Krebs, president of the club, presided and announced plans for future activities. To perfect a countywide organization the county has been divided into four sections, he said. These groups will take an active part in the campaign preceding the November election. Meetings will be held by each section, the first being a rally at Agosta in the Western section some time in June.

Mr. Krebs also announced plans for a preprimary rally in Marion May 3. A penny supper and talks by prominent party leaders will feature the rally.

A program of entertainment under the direction of Miss Louise Cunningham was a feature of the meeting last night.

TWO GALION HOMES LOOTED BY BURGLARS

Special to The Star
GALION, April 3.—Two Galion homes were entered Monday night and Tuesday, according to reports received by local police.

At the home of Mrs. Harriet Logan of North Columbus street, a thief entered about 10 p. m. Monday and took a purse belonging to the housewife, a visit in the house. A note was heard in the house but nothing was thought of it until the discovery that the pocketbook was missing. It contained about $250 in money, and a check.

The home of Earl Clements of Cherry street was also entered some time between Monday night and Tuesday morning. A handbag containing $3 was taken, and a woman's wrist watch was also missing. Entrance was made by raising a kitchen window on the east side of the house. The family was not at home when the theft took place.

DUCE WANTS NEGUS' ARMY BLOTTED OUT

ROME, April 3.—Premier Mussolini proclaimed to his ministers today that security for Italy in its east African colonies would be realized only with "total annihilation of the Ethiopian military formation."

If Duce met his council of ministers in a sudden, extraordinary session which had not been announced in advance, it was held just as the League of Nations conciliation committee of 13 was meeting in Geneva.

Destruction of Emperor Haile Selassie's army, Mussolini told his ministers, "cannot be lacking or delayed."

Do YOU KNOW that there is a men's clothing popularity contest every year, and that every year Richman Brothers Clothes win it by a large margin?

Yes indeed! Each year more men buy and wear Richman's Clothes than any other brand made in this country. And such popularity must be deserved, for the preference is backed by cash purchases.

The reason is that Richman's quality, style, fit and value make of his clothes a real money-saver by their economy.

There is no other brand of men's clothes that can compare with Richman's.

Engineer Talks Before Members of Club Group

THE facing of facts and intelligent thinking on the part of capital, management and labor is the solution to the present economic situation in the United States today, Samuel S. Wyer of Columbus, told his audience last night when he addressed members of the Marion County Federation of Women's clubs. The meeting, held in the recreational room at the First Presbyterian church, marked the close of the program season for this year. The federation will meet this season with the annual fine arts day program early in May.

Mr. Wyer, a consulting engineer, is one of the outstanding men of his profession and also has carried on extensive research in engineering. He is a well-known writer and lecturer on economic trends. Next month he will go to Kansas where he has an extensive speaking itinerary.

Mr. Wyer spoke on the subject "Contributions to a Way Out of Our Economic Muddle." Preceding his talk a quartet composed of L. G. Jones, Harold Bradt, Forest Hill and Howard Orr sang two numbers, "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah," and "Good Night, Good Night Beloved."

The speaker described the depression as something different than ever has been experienced something that did not happen by chance, and cited as some of the causes the supplanting of machinery for muscle, the nationwide mania for business and the lack of understanding of economic relationship between capital and labor.

"If the present social order snaps, it will not be because of any radicals but because of the indifference of business groups in facing things as they are today," he said. A distributive employment so that labor can purchase that which it has helped to create and the payment of capital only when it "works," were among the necessary social adjustments cited by Mr. Wyer. He placed the burden of the payment of present taxations and debts on the shoulders of future generations and designated the present generation of adults as a group lacking self respect enough to pay their own way, and expecting future generations to pay for our spending spree of today.

Mr. Wyer lauded the far-sightedness of the founders of the constitution and declared they "never intended it for a hitching post but a gold-post for future actions." The constitution does not say, "the United States," it says "we, the people," he pointed out.

The development of a new spirit and a new approach which will recognize that duties of individuals and groups of each other are more important than individual rights, the recognition that human rights are superior to property rights, that there is such interdependence between capital and labor that neither can function without the use and cooperation of the other, and the recognition that every man's wage is a part of some other man's cost of living were some of the major points brought out by the speaker in offering a solution to the problem.

Mrs. Paul Knauss, president of the federation presided for a short business session which preceded the talk. Miss Marion Conley, program chairman was in charge of the program hour.

RELATES STORY OF HOLY WEEK

Rev. Lehman Preaches Sermonettes at Noonday Services: To Close Thursday.

The happenings of Wednesday in Holy Week were recounted by Rev. E. A. Lehman of St. Paul's Episcopal Lutheran church in a sermonettes delivered at today's noonday union service at the First United Brethren church. Approximately 60 persons attended the 45-minute devotional service. The third and last of the noonday series will be held Thursday at 11:45 a. m.

Rev. Lehman spoke of the Wednesday centuries ago when Judas and the betrayers plotted against Christ.

Wednesday of Holy Week was a day of which not much is written in the Bible and it is evident that Jesus was silent most of the day, he said.

Robert Swisher, baritone, sang "Jesus, Lover of My Soul." The service was presided over by Rev. Franklin G. Markley of Epworth E. church, president of the Marion County Ministerial association.

Rev. Henry Maag of the Prospect Street M. E. church read the scripture and offered prayer and Rev. James O. Dodd of the Central Christian church pronounced the benediction.

Singing was led by J. L. Meredith, with Robert Dellinger at the piano.

Rev. Lawrence A. Wood of the Trinity Baptist church and Rev. Harold D. Halderman of the First Memorial Baptist church announced their subjects for services tonight through Friday night. Rev. Wood's sermon on the theme, "The Meaning of the Cross," will be as follows: Tonight, "The Cross, the Revelation of Divine Love"; Thursday, "The Four Dimensions of Divine Love"; Friday, "The Cross the Realization of Divine Love." Rev. Halderman will conduct communion Friday night following a sermon on "Loyalty to Christ." Tonight he will speak on "Judas, the Traitor," and Thursday night on "Christ and Pilate."

Other churches in which Holy Week services will be conducted tonight are St. Paul's Episcopal church, Epworth M. E. church, Calvary Evangelical church, Emanuel Lutheran church, St. Paul's English Lutheran church, Central Christian church, Forest Lawn Presbyterian church and the Salem Evangelical and Reformed church.

CLUB ENTERTAINED AT PROSPECT HOME

Mrs. Watkin E. Watkins was hostess last night to the Jolly Tyme club of Prospect. Guests were Misses Maryland Secrest and Edna Stockwell, Mrs. John J. Watkins and sons Mrs. Huston Ackley and daughter and Mrs. Lucy Slack of Richmond.

AWAIT GUFFEY LAWN DEATH
By The Associated Press
CINCINNATI, O., April 8.—Appalachian Coal, Inc., largest coal sales agency in the United States, launched today its plan for an expanded sales force by way of preparation, an official source disclosed, for anticipated invalidation of the Guffey coal act.

O. S. U. Women's Dean on Marion Altrusa Program

DR. ESTHER GAY dean of women at Ohio State university has accepted an invitation to address a dinner meeting of the Marion Altrusa club April 21 at Ringer's Inn on the Prospect road.

Dean Gay, who is a member of the Columbus Altrusa club, will talk on "Keep Our Own Contemporaries."

The meeting will be held in the interests of the national guidance work of the Marion club. Arrangements were completed last evening at a business and social meeting. Mrs. Miss Clara Leffer of South State street, Miss Mary Kull gave an interesting account of her recent trip to Mexico illustrating it with lantern slides, some of which were made from her own pictures taken on the trip. Lunch was served by the hostess.

Lydia chapter will hold an anniversary party April 20, and the annual inspection of the work will be conducted May 4, at which time Mrs. Harriet Ben of Youngstown, worthy grand matron, will be a guest.
